Gender and Social Inclusion in the Off-Grid Sector

What measures should we take to support vulnerable population segments affected by lack of electricity access in the wake of the Covid-19 pandemic?
Moderator:
Dr. Margaret Wanjiku Ngunjiri, Gender and Social Inclusion Advisor, ACE TAF

Speaker:
Olasimbo Sojinrin, Country Director, Solar Sister, Nigeria

Speaker:
Dr. Frederick John, Energy Consultant and GESI specialist for ECOWAS, Sierra Leone

Speaker:
Ndeye Seynabo Pouye, President of FAADEV, Senegal
• Discuss gender and social inclusion issues in off-grid solar (OGS)
• Interrogate gender and social inclusion issues in the context of COVID-19
• Explore how to integrate a gender and social inclusion lens in OGS from the perspectives of different players (government, private sector (solar companies), financiers, NGOs, donors, among others)
• Share selected experiences from the West African Region
Not synonymous with women, but inclusive of energy-specific interests of often excluded groups: women in low-income HHs, jobless youth, PWDs, internally displaced and nomadic populations.

Dr. Margaret Wanjiku Ngunjiri is a gender and governance specialist with over 15 years of international development experience in East and Southern Africa. She has a wealth of experience in the areas of decentralized governance, public policy analysis and engagement; and gender mainstreaming in energy and agriculture programmes.

Olasimbo Sojinrin is the Country Director for Solar Sister Nigeria which is a social enterprise and not for profit social enterprise that is committed to building a network of women entrepreneurs, especially in underserved communities. Through Solar Sister they seek to provide energy access through a range of clean energy products that they distribute in their communities. She is an enthusiastic social activist, passionate about fighting for women's economic empowerment issues, along with eradicating energy poverty and climate/environmental issues.
Ndeye Seynabou Pouye is passionate about promoting female and youth entrepreneurship. Her concerns for gender issues have led her to set up an organisation called Active African Women for Development (FAADEV) in 2018. FAADEV positions itself as an incubator to support the economic growth of female entrepreneurs through a business model based on agricultural activities, renewable energy and digitisation, to enable women empowerment and youth employment.

Dr. Frederick John is a gender in energy specialist with +15 years of professional experience working in the sector at the policy level, to ensure that the challenge of gender equality becomes a visible and key concern; at the programme level, to ensure that all energy interventions create opportunities for women’s empowerment and gender equality; at the organizational level, to ensure that equal economic and financial opportunities are available to women as well as men.
